NEXT STEPS

In order to facilitate the development of a statewide trauma system, a small number of the members of the Trauma Advisory Committee were convened to prepare an initial draft proposal. The group held a conference call to discuss the agenda for the in-person meeting. It was determined that major elements would be described in the draft document. Members were asked to bring three elements of importance to the meeting as a place to start. The goal of the next meeting would be to describe the major elements of a statewide trauma system as a basis for initial discussion with the full Trauma Advisory Committee.
